Editor's Note

New Movie, New Pokémon, New Excitement

There's lots of excitement surrounding Pokémon The Movie 2000. Last year's movie surprised film critics everywhere and raked in more than 85 million dollars at the box office. This year everyone has a better idea of what to expect. Pokémon The Movie 2000, which includes the film short Pikachu The Movie, introduces American audiences to more than half a dozen new Pokémon. We have a list of them inside this issue.

At least ten companies have obtained Pokémon licenses to produce and promote a product in conjunction with the release of the new movie. You'll see Atlantic Records, Kellogg, Sears and many others scrambling for some shelf space.

Remember last year's fast food Pokémon toy craze? Well, it's here again! Those geniuses at Burger King have combined trading cards with toys and have come up with something called Power Cards. These new interactive toy cards are available in five different functional categories that are certain to send kids back to the restaurants to collect 'em all. For the complete view of the Power Card set turn to page 13.

We've received many letters from our readers wanting to know who are the most powerful of the new Pokémon. Beginning on page 26, we've included a top ten list of the most powerful new Pokémon from the Neo set. You may be surprised at which ones made the list.

Inside this issue we've included contests for the three hottest areas of trading cards. On page 18 enter our Dragonball Z contest for a chance to win an unopened box of Limited Edition Dragonball Z game cards from Score. Turn to page 24 and you can enter to win a complete set of 1st Edition Team Rocket cards. Then after you've entered those contests, go to page 74 for a chance to win a rare and valuable Digimon trading card, the Gold Numbered Greymon Exclusive Preview card.

There's a lot more fun and games inside this issue including Pokémon Fun Cards, The Legendary Birds scene, How to Draw Alakazam, The Digi-Files and much more. As always, let us know what are your favorite sections. ✨

Enjoy!

AUTHENTICATED POKÉMON CARDS

I found some fake Pokémon cards in my collection. What is one way I can authenticate my Pokémon cards?

Cory Hart, age 10
Anchorage, Alaska

When you send in your Pokémon cards to be graded by Beckett Grading Services, they automatically authenticate and grade your card. The cost of grading each Pokémon card is $10. For more information on the grading service please see the card grading ad inside this issue or go to our Web site at www.beckett.com.

AMERICAN NEO CARDS

Do you know when the Neo cards will be available in English? Also, will there be new Neo cards coming out soon?

Joann Klassem
Via e-mail

Wizards of the Coast is planning to release the American Neo cards next year. The Media Factory is planning to release a Series 2 Neo set in Japan this month. More information on Series 2 will be included in an upcoming issue of Beckett Pokémon Collector.

NEO RARITY SYMBOLS

I have a Neo card that might have an error on it. It's number 156 Magumarashi. In lower right hand side where it shows the rarity symbol its blank. Is this a fake or just a misprint?

Jonathan DeWard
Via e-mail

Neo Series 7 Pokémon #152 to #160 are also part of the 9-card Neo Promo set. All of the Neo Promo cards do not contain a rarity symbol. Your Magumarashi card #156 is from the Promo set. For prices and information on these cards please turn to our price guide section inside this issue.

BASE UNLIMITED VARIATIONS

In a recent issue you had an article about Type 2 Base Wizards of the Coast Pokémon cards. You had mentioned that some of the Base series cards were mistakenly printed without the right side shadow. If I understand, the 1st Edition Base cards were supposed to be shadowless but Wizards of the Coast intended to add the shadow to the Unlimited version. Indeed, most of the Base series Unlimited cards have a shadow. I believe only about 5 percent of the cards (other than 1st Edition) are shadowless. Only 10 percent of the any Wizards of the Coast print run is 1st Edition. This makes the shadowless, non-1st Edition (Type 2) card twice as rare as 1st Edition. Indeed many "true collectors" prize the Type 2 cards. I was wondering if you could include a section in the Beckett Pokémon Collector titled Base (Type 2) Wizards of the Coast.

Kevin S. Koch
Via e-mail

That's an interesting idea Kevin. We've been following the secondary market on the Unlimited Base Type 1 and Type 2 cards. Unfortunately, there's not a lot of activity for it to warrant a separate section. However, if that changes we would consider including something. Just to set the record straight, the Type 1 (shadowless) Unlimited cards are scarcer than Type 2 Unlimited.

THE MYSTERIOUS BIRD POKÉMON

In the first Pokémon episode, I saw Ash looking into the sky at a bird. I heard that the bird was a Houou. I thought it was a Fearow. What bird was it that Ash saw flying in the rainbow? Houou or Fearow?

Maria Ongpin
Via e-mail

*The Pokémon episodes state that this bird is rarely seen by anyone. Since Fearow has appeared in several episodes, many Pokémon fans believe the mystical bird is Houou. The Americanized name for this bird is now Ho-Oh. **

Pokémon The Movie 20

MON e OOO

It's Ash, Pikachu and Lugia to the rescue.

MOVIE MANIA!

We recently got the opportunity to review the Japanese version of Pokémon The Movie 2000 called Revelation Lugia. Pokémon fans will certainly enjoy the film as it's filled with lots of action and adventure. As the movie begins we see Ash Ketchum and his friends in a boat heading toward the Orange Islands in search of new adventures. Everything seems to be going well until a storm suddenly appears out of nowhere and pushes them to the shore of one of the islands.

When Ash, Pikachu, Misty and the rest of the crew jump out of the boat they are greeted by people dressed in scary-looking headhunter costumes. They're quickly invited to attend a local festival and have some fun.

But their relaxing cruise goes haywire in a hurry. The undersea currents, which are the

PRODUCTS & PROMOTIONS

Pokémon: The Movie 2000 has received lots of added firepower and it isn't from Charizard. The promotional movie tie-ins are getting ready to roll. Here's a checklist of more Pokémon items on their way.

- Target stores will be offering a free movie ticket with the purchase of a Pokémon Nintendo game.
- Beginning in August, Kmart will chip in by offering a free laminated binder insert calendar with the purchase of Pokémon movie merchandise.
- Sears' ongoing Pokémon Mart themed area will debut new movie-related product.
- Kellogg's has signed on with in-pack movie-themed items offered via six or seven million packs of Pokémon-branded Pop Tarts, Eggo frozen waffles and special marked packages of Kellogg's cereals.
- Clorox has partnered up to offer Pokémon posters with the purchase of two packs of Glad Sandwich Bags.
- Choice Hotels is mounting a U.S. $3-million radio and print campaign that includes their 1,700 Comfort Inns and Comfort Suites. A free 52-page Pokémon activity book will be distributed to every kid guest through the end of July.
- Pokémon distributor Warner Brothers will be pushing movie ads airing across the U.S. via broadcast and kid cable that includes a free trading card offer.
- Atlantic Records will release the movie soundtrack in July.

And this is only the beginning. Look for more products in the months to come. For more information on Pokémon, pick up a copy of Beckett Pokémon Collector or go to our web site at www.beckett.com.

If all that isn't enough reason to see the movie, Warner Brothers announced that Pokémon: The Movie 2000 is the launching point for the new television series, Pokémon G/S! That series will start airing on the Kids WB this Fall and we'll have a sneak preview of it in an upcoming issue of Beckett Pokémon Collector.

lifeblood of their planet, are being upset by forces of nature previously only thought of as legend.

It seems that the Orange Islands have more than its share of strange and rare Pokémon. As we learn from the incredibly wise Slowking, there are three legendary birds that live near the islands. They are: Moltres (God of Fire), Zapdos (God of Thunder) and Articuno (God of Ice). Each bird has its own island, but a crazy Pokémon collector has plans to capture them all. After they're caught, Ash helps them

NEW POKÉMON NAMES

We've compiled a list of 14 new Pokémon that have had their Japanese names translated into new American names. The ones in red appear in Pokémon: The Movie 2000.

escape. Everyone thinks he's set things right. Instead, all three birds start fighting amongst themselves. Their powers are so great it could mean the end of the world.

But there's still hope. There's still one god-like Pokémon of the Sea, Lugia, who can save the day. However, there's only one problem. That mad collector never really wanted those three legendary birds. Lugia has always been his target. It's up to Ash to stop him, but even he fails. Who can Ash call on to save the day?

Without giving everything away, you'll have to see the movie to find out what happens.

It's a relatively short movie at just 80 minutes, but the film makes up for its lack of time by putting together the most dynamic, twisting plot with the best animation any Pokémon project has received to date. The film is chock full of special effects, slam-bang action and even an important message about messing with things that are

TOPPS

The Topps Company has released a new 72-card set based on the new Pokémon movie. So if you want a sneak peek at what's what and who's who in the plot, this sounds like one of the best ways to do it.

Besides the base set, which features all the main characters as well as the movie's highlights, there are four insert sets that will be high on everyone's want lists. They are:

● 35 mm Film Frame Cards - One-of-a-kind cards that contain mini cels from the actual reels of the movie. These will be inserted one per box.

● Static Cling/Puzzle Cards - Ten vinyl cards that you can stick and peel off any surface with puzzle pieces on the back.

● First Appearance Cards - Special cards featuring the six new Pokémon!

● Silver Foil Parallel - One in each pack. Parallel of the regular card set.

Each pack will contain seven regular cards and one silver foil parallel.

WIZARDS OF THE COAST

Loews Cineplex Odeon Theatres will include special displays, four limited-edition Pokémon strategy cards from Wizards of the Coast and a kids meal program that includes a special Pokémon gift. The cards will feature Ancient Mew and the three legendary birds: Articuno, Moltres and Zapdos.

beyond our human control.

But if that isn't enough, Warner Bros. also shows a special 20-minute short film called The Pikachu Movie. This featurette kicks off when Togepi loses balance and the next thing you know all of Ash and Misty's Pokémon including Meowth, fall into a hole no one has ever seen before.

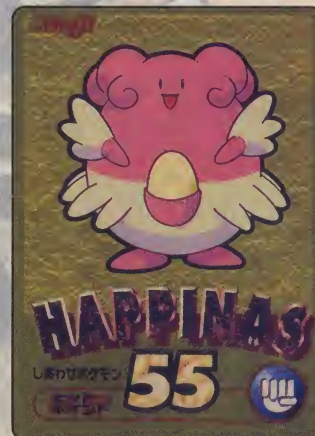

All the Pokémon creatures find themselves in a strange new Pokémon world much like the forests in Alice In Wonderland. Among the strange creatures they meet is a Pokémon called Elekid, who looks like a walking electric plug.

Pikachu's crew must save Togepi from a very nasty storm. The storm is so great they have to call on Elekid and Snorlax to give them a much needed hand. Will all these strange new Pokémon come to the aid of Pikachu, Bulbasaur, Meowth, Squirtle and Psyduck? Again, you have to watch the film to find out. 🍿

A Salute to

Create Your Own Pokémon Theme Deck of Your State

Undoubtedly you've seen the Pokémon TCG "theme" decks available through Wizards of the Coast, makers of the English version of the game. For many players, a pre-constructed theme deck was the first playable Pokémon deck they owned. During 1999 Wizards released eight preconstructed theme decks: Blackout, Brushfire, Overgrowth, and Zap (from the Basic set); Power Reserve and Water Blast (from the Jungle expansion); and Body Guard and Lockdown (Fossil expansion). And we should add a little "heads up" to you collectors out there: with the release of the Base set (version 2) and Team Rocket expansion sets, Wizards of the Coast has released more preconstructed theme decks to collect - "Gotta catch 'em all!"

Although none of the preconstructed decks would be considered "tournament-worthy" for serious competition, they are great beginner's decks with a good balance of Pokémon, Energy and Trainer cards. But why should the West Coast

"Wizards" have all the fun? With a little imagination and the right cards, you can create your own theme deck. As you can see from my own little creation (see chart on page 22) you don't even need to include any of those expensive holofoils, either!

I created a theme deck with Pokémon that I could somehow associate with various features of my adopted state, New Mexico. I had never played much with Fire (Pokémon, that is) so my deck started out as an experiment using the most energy-efficient Fire Pokémon (in my opinion): Magmar (Fossil), Ponyta, and Rapidash. Then I decided to combine Grass Pokémon with the Fire Pokémon, adding one of my favorite quick evolutionary lines, Exeggcute and Exeggutor. As I experimented and played with this deck, it occurred to me that the colors red and green held a pleasant association with some of my favorite aspects of life in New Mexico - hence, the "New Mexico Red and Green Chile Deck" was born. (In case you didn't know, chile is the New Mexico state vegetable!)

By the way, this deck isn't just a cute "gimmicky" theme deck - try it out against your friends and you'll see. It has held up very well both at our local Pokémon League and at home (among our family of four serious Pokémon players). You'll be pleased to note that there are no expensive holofoil rare cards in the deck - just a bunch of very solid hitters, and a good balance of Trainers to help you control the game. It's a relatively cheap deck to build, and I think fun to play.

New Mexico Pokémon Deck List

Pokémon Cards (18)	Why is it in the deck? What connection does it have to the state?
Magmar (Fossil) x 3	①. Magmar, the "Spitfire Pokémon," is "found at the mouths of volcanoes and extremely hard to spot." New Mexico is home to dozens of extinct volcanoes; therefore, a determined Pokémon collector should be able to find many Magmar by touring the state!
Ponyta x 2	The "Fire Horse" Pokémon represents the horse-breeding and horse racing traditions of the state.
Rapidash x 2	②. A "very competitive" Pokémon that will "chase anything that moves fast in the hopes of racing it," Ponyta's evolved form would be right at home at the Ruidoso Downs Racing Complex in central New Mexico.
Exeggcute x 3	③. The "Egg Pokémon" mixes well in this red & green deck, reminding us of one of New Mexican's favorite dishes, "Huevos Rancheros" (eggs & green or red chile)!
Exeggutor x 2	Like this surprising evolution from "Egg" to "Coconut" Pokémon, numerous fossil finds in New Mexico reveal a surprising diversity of evolutions, including fossils of sea-creatures and tropical coastal plants including early ancestors of our modern coconut.
Scyther x 3	"Team Diamonds" spotted a magnificent brilliant green mantis in our backyard here in Albuquerque this past summer, evidence that New Mexico has excellent specimens of "Mantis Pokémon."
Kangaskhan x 1	As the home of the famous "Roswell Incident," New Mexico may well be expected to be home to Pokémon with a "Cosmic Punch."
Ditto x 2	Among some New Mexican Native Americans there are old folktales about people called "shape-shifters," who are able to change their appearance from human to animal - an ability similar to the Pokémon Power of Ditto, the "Transform Pokémon."
Energy cards (24) Double Colorless x 3 Fire x 12 Grass x 9	Trainer Cards (18) Bill x 3 Computer Search x 2 Energy Retrieval x 2 Energy Search x 2	Gust of Wind x 2 Item Finder x 1 Professor Oak x 2 ScoopUp x 2 Super Energy Removal x 2 that New Mexico is well known for producing red and green chile, this deck emphasizes red (Fire) and green (Grass) Pokémon with special connections to New Mexico themes. (See chart on page 22.)

There you have it - the first unofficial "New Mexico theme deck." How about all you Pokémon Masters out there? Can you put together a theme deck representing your state? Send in your best efforts to this magazine, and maybe you'll get famous (or at least, published). To be in the running, your deck must fulfill the following requirements:

-  1. Your deck must be a legal, playable Pokémon deck of 60 cards with Pokémon, Energy, and Trainer cards.
-  2. Here's the most important part: explain the reason you included each Pokémon card, what it has to do with your state and the overall theme of your deck. (It's okay if you have to "reach" for the reason - just be creative!). You need not give reasons for why you chose the Trainers or Energies, unless you want to.
-  3. Let us know how well (or poorly) the deck has done against other decks. Try out your personalized theme deck against other Pokémon players, either in your neighborhood or at Pokémon League. If the deck theme is catchy enough and turns out to be a "killer deck," you might see it in a future issue of Beckett's Pokémon Collector. Start getting creative, Pokémon Masters!

The Top 10 Most Powerful Neo Pokémon

Are you looking at all your Neo cards and scratching your head as to which are the best and worst Pokémon? We know there are some good cards and not-so-good cards in this set. To help you put together a strong card deck, here's a list of some of the more powerful Pokémon to consider when playing the TCG game. TEAM ROCKET'S

TRAINERS GANG UP!

By Steven Diamond

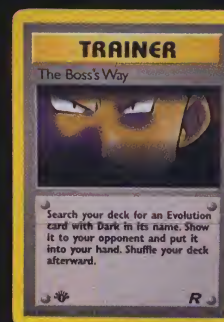

They're aggressive, they're sneaky, and they do stuff other Pokemon Trainers can't do. Team Rocket's Trainers can give you some whole new strategies and deck possibilities, from reviving Pokemon in your discard pile to challenging your opponent to coin-flipping contests.

CARD DRAWING POWER

Three of my favorite TR Trainers can help you search for a card when you need it most. They are: The Boss's Way, Challenge, and Nightly Garbage Run. Each has the ability to draw additional cards, either from your deck or from your discard pile. And unlike Computer Search or Pokemon Trader, these new Trainers let you retrieve cards at no cost. The Boss's Way allows you to search your deck for an Evolution card with Dark in its name. It's the perfect way to evolve your Oddish to Dark Gloom or Dark Charmeleon to Dark Charizard without counting on a lucky draw. If your deck strategy depends on a Dark evolution, The Boss's Way is a must.

TR's Challenge gives you a win-win card-drawing tactic. Play Challenge and ask your opponent if they accept your challenge. If they accept, you each get to draw up to five Basic Pokemon from your decks to place on your bench - of course, you need to have room on your bench. This card is a real boost to a Wigglytuff deck hoping to fill its bench to "Do the Wave" - something I found out when I lost to this combination at Pokemon League. If your opponent refuses your challenge, you simply get to draw two cards. This is a win-win Dark trainer technique.

Nightly Garbage Run may not sound too attractive, but it can be an absolute game saver. NGR allows you to search your discard pile for up to 3 Basic Pokemon, evolution Pokemon, or Basic Energy cards and shuffle them back into your deck (no Trainers, special energies or Double Colorless Energies). Unlike the rarely-used Poké Ball Trainer, which depends on a heads coin flip to revive one Pokemon, NGR is a sure-fire reviver of evolutions such as Alakazam, Blastoise, or Dark Vileplume that were knocked out earlier in the game. A natural combination is NGR with The Boss's Way. This retrieves a critical card with NGR, shuffles it back into your deck then pulls it back out courtesy of The Boss. This little dumpster diver can be very useful for getting back valuable Energies or to avoid decking yourself at the end of a long game. Your NGR card - don't leave home without it!

REAL DISRUPTION

What would a Team Rocket review be without Trainers that cause disruption, confusion, and general chaos? Three Trainers give us the TR spin on driving your opponent batty: Rocket's Sneak Attack, Imposter Oak's Revenge, and Here Comes Team Rocket. Rocket Sneak Attack lets you look at your opponent's hand. If they're holding a Trainer you don't want them to use anytime soon, you can politely ask them to return it to their deck. Say goodbye to that Nightly Garbage Run or Computer Search they were about to use, or defend yourself against a Super Energy Removal that would've stripped your Chansey of two Double Colorless Energies. Another devious TR disrupter is Imposter Oak's Revenge, which forces your opponent to shuffle his or her hand into their deck and then draw four cards. Like Rocket Sneak Attack, Oak's Revenge needs to be played after your opponent has used a Professor Oak or a Gambler to fill his or her hand with goodies.

Here Comes Team Rocket is the third disruptive TR Trainer and, along with Rocket Sneak Attack, was released as an ultra-rare holofoil as well. When you throw down Here Comes Team Rocket, both players must play the rest of the game with their Prize cards face up. While you might think this is just another way to distract your opponent, here's a combination to think about. Take a look at that cute little Team Rocket Rattata shoved away in your shoe-box and note its Pokemon Power, Trickery. Once during your turn you may switch one of your Prizes with the top card of your deck. Try playing Here Comes Team Rocket to turn up all your Prizes, then use Rattata's Trickery to move the Prize you want to the top of your deck. Then play a Bill or do a Kangaskhan "Fetch" and draw that card - a neat trick!

TRAINERS THAT ATTACK

Three final TR Trainers round out the new team. One of the most useful is Goop Gas Attack, which may become known as "Mr. Mime's Worst Nightmare." When you play Goop Gas Attack, all Pokemon Powers on both sides of the table stop working until the end of your opponent's turn. So, if you're confronted and confounded by a pesky Mr. Mime's Invisible Wall Pokemon Power, turn it off and knock it out. Sleep! (Rocket's Secret Machine) will mostly stay secret in your collector's binder. Sleep! asks you to flip a coin. If heads the Defending Pokemon is Asleep. Although it might be useful in rare situations, I'd rather use Jigglypuff's Lullaby to put my opponent to sleep for sure. Digger (Rocket's Secret Machine) is another TR Trainer that calls for coin tosses. You and your opponent take turns flipping a coin, with you going first. The first person to come up with a tails does 10 damage to their active Pokemon, end of story. While Digger is unique as the only Trainer to actually cause direct damage, the required coin toss makes it too unreliable to count on as part of a killer deck.

Trainers are always a vital part of a player's deck. With the addition of Team Rocket's Trainer cards, you now have more ways to win.

The Secrets of Evolution

Powerful Primates and Poisonous Plants

By Steven Diamond

Illustrations by Kagemaru Himeno

Bringing along a boat-load of new Pokémon Powers and attacks, the Team Rocket expansion adds a lot of fun and complexity to Pokémon TCG competition. With names like Anger, Mischief, Frenzied Attack, and Sinkhole, TR's attacks and powers are well-suited for use by the sneaky members of Team Rocket. Confused pig monkeys and powerful stinky weeds will daze Defending Pokémon and give your opponents a real headache!

Powerful Pig Monkeys

Two of my favorite TR cards are the new Mankey and its evolution, Dark Primeape. Team Rocket Mankey has 40 HP (improving on Fossil Mankey's 30 HP) and a first attack called Mischief that makes your opponent shuffle his deck. TR Mankey's Anger attack does 20 damage and possibility another 20 damage if you toss a coin and get heads. With no-cost retreats and resistance to Psychic attacks, TR Mankey works great.

TR Mankey's best trick is to evolve into Dark Primeape. Although Dark Primeape has only 60 HP, the big pig monkey can deliver a real beating with Frenzied Attack, doing 40 damage for only 2 Fighting Energy. There's just one little drawback. After a Frenzied Attack, Dark Primeape is Confused. A problem? Not really, because Dark Primeape's Pokémon Power, Frenzy, says: "If Dark Primeape does any damage while it's Confused (even to itself), it does 30 more damage."

So, try using Frenzied Attack on one turn and then use it again on your next turn. If you're lucky enough to flip heads, the attack will be worth 70 damage. That's a lot of damage for just two Energies. Of course, if you try this and flip tails you'll do 50 damage to Dark Primeape. That's 20 damage for the failed attack plus 30 damage due to Pokémon Power Frenzy. Being the smart Pokémon Master that you are, you'll certainly have some Full Heal Trainers or Full Heal Energies in your deck to un-Confuse your well-trained monkey.

Weeds to Worry Your Opponents

The Oddish family also receives a real upgrade in Team Rocket. Your Basic Weed Pokémon, TR Oddish, needs only one Grass Energy to give you the choice of either Poisoning or putting the Defending Pokémon Asleep. Asleep gives you the chance to delay a strong opposing Pokémon from attacking or retreating, while Poison is great to slowly whittle away a Defending Pokémon's HP. My own TR Oddish has used Poisonpowder to knock out a mighty 70 HP Articuno, bit by bit!

Carefully cultivated, your cute little TR Oddish will grow up to become the potent plant Pokémon, Dark Gloom. Although Dark Gloom's 50 HP is weaker than Fossil Gloom's 60 HP, the new Gloom is definitely better. Its single attack, Poisonpowder, does 10 damage and poisons the Defending Pokémon. Even better, Dark Gloom's Pollen Stench Pokémon Power allows you to flip a coin once during your turn. If heads the Defending Pokémon is Confused. If tails your own Active Pokémon is Confused.

Remember our new pig monkey pal, Dark Primeape? Here's a sweet combination for your new Team Rocket deck. With Dark Primeape as your Active Pokémon and Dark Gloom on your bench, let the Pig Monkey do its Frenzied Attack for 40 damage - now Dark Primeape is Confused. Using Dark Gloom's Pokémon Power, on your next turn flip to see if you can Confuse the opposing Pokémon. If heads the Defending Pokémon is Confused and if its tails your Dark Primeape simply stays Confused. You have nothing to lose. With all the Pokémon cards out there that enjoy resistance to Fighting attacks, it's great to have a Fighting Pokémon with a potential knock-out punch of 70. Even against big hitters like Scyther and Articuno who boast a minus-30 resistance to Fighting attacks, a Confused Dark Primeape's Frenzied Attack still yields 40 damage.

Last but not least in the Oddish family comes Stage 2 evolution Dark Vileplume. With only 60 HP, the Rocket variety of this Flower Pokémon is pretty weak compared to Fossil Vileplume who has 80 HP. Dark Vileplume's Petal Whirlwind attack is also weaker than Fossil Vileplume's Petal Dance. A Petal Whirlwind coin toss of three heads can deliver 90 damage, while a Petal Dance with three heads yields 120 damage. When Dark Vileplume's Pokémon Power Hay Fever is in play, no Trainer cards may be used. Of course, that affects both you and your opponent, so if you dare to evolve your Dark Gloom to Dark Vileplume, be sure your deck doesn't depend on Trainers to win. On the other hand, if you're faced with an opponent whose deck is utterly reliant on Trainers then eliminating the use of Trainers could win you the game.

Step 1: Roughly sketch a stick figure of the basic action in the drawing. The two large circles indicate Alakazam's head and hands. Use simple lines to show the direction of the arms and legs.

Step 2: The use of ovals forms the size and mass of various body parts. Note how the collection of various oval sizes and shapes already begin to look like Alakazam's figure.

Step 3: Add in the figure's details and try to avoid too many curved lines at this stage. After the structure of the figure has been drawn with straight lines, you can change them to curves that are more accurate and realistic. (See final drawing.) ★
